Quadrennial WSSFN Meeting 2005

The WSSFN has granted me the privilege to organize the next congress which will be held in Rome June, 14th-17th 2005 and to dedicate this effort to the career of my mentor, Professor Gian Franco Rossi.

The last decades have been particularly challenging in the neurosurgical field since technological innovations have allowed us to tackle more and more complex diagnostic, interpretative, and therapeutic problems. Today, the border between neurosurgery and functional neurosurgery is less defined and I cannot imagine a neurosurgery which is not functional. The topics we will face show, in fact, an overlapping of interests not only with other sectors of general neurosurgery but also with other fields of medicine which appear very unrelated.

The great momentum in this field of research has led to a hyper-specialization and forces us to reflect, to observe from a distance, to try and see beyond the limits imposed by the specialization. The Eternal City, well-known for its warm welcome to visitors, will create an environment rich in history and culture which I am certain will favour this.

-Mario Meglio

WSSFN Mission Statement

The mission of the World Society for Stereotactic and Functional Neurosurgery is to foster the use of stereotactic and functional neurological methods for the treatment of diseases of the nervous system and to advance stereotactic and functional neurosurgery and related sciences to improve patient care, support basic and clinical research, to provide leadership in education, and to help provide the administrative facilities to meet these goals.

Further, the society will provide a forum for the review of the basic form and function of the nervous system and to establish minimum standards for the performance of stereotactic and functional neurosurgery.

The society strives to offer an international forum for sharing new developments in basic and clinical research in functional neurosurgery, publish the pre-eminent clinical and research journal devoted to functional neurosurgery, and create professional liaisons with other regional and subspecialty organizations for unifying the many disciplines represented in the field of functional neurosurgery.
